

Do you really want to march with the TAC?

The role of vitamins and micronutrients in fighting immune deficiencies is documented in every textbook of biology and biochemistry. The Dr. Rath Health Foundation has now proven that vitamins are an effective and affordable way to fight AIDS and even reverse the symptoms of this immune deficiency. The results of a pilot nutrient programme in Khayelitsha in which we provided vitamin and other nutrients to patients with advanced AIDS were so encouraging that we decided to bring this important breakthrough to the attention of the entire world.

On the reverse side of this page you will find a reprint of a public health information article that we placed in the New York Times and other international newspapers. In it we describe the encouraging results of this nutrient programme in Khayelitsha. In summary the results were as follows:

1. Every textbook of biology and biochemistry documents the fact that vitamins and other micronutrients are essential cofactors for optimum metabolism of millions of cells in our body – including the cells responsible for effective immune defence.

2. In a nutrient programme composed of vitamins, amino acids, minerals and extracts from Green tea which was provided to HIV-positive AIDS patients in Khayelitsha we convincingly documented the public health benefits of natural and nutritional health approaches. None of the AIDS patients on this nutrient programme had taken any ARV drugs prior or during this programme.

3. Within the short period of only four weeks, the combination of micronutrients was able to improve all immune function markers of AIDS patients, including total white blood cells (+18%), neutrophils (+20%), lymphocytes (+34%), monocytes (+32%), total T-cells (+12%), CD4 cells (+11%), CD8 cells (+11%) (see graph in New York Times).

4. Most importantly, within the period of 4 weeks the symptoms of the immune deficiency disease AIDS had significantly reversed or had entirely disappeared. Even severely infected skin ulcers, a typical symptom of advanced AIDS almost completely healed with the nutrient programme (see picture in the New York Times).

5. The improvements and wellbeing of the patients was also assessed by a questionnaire before and during the programme. On the nutrient programme many AIDS related symptoms improved. The patients reported less pain, less nausea, less headache, less eye burning and blurred vision, less skin bruises, less muscle cramps less sweating and other improvements of their wellbeing.

6. The study was continued over a period of 8 weeks, during which all these benefits for the patients became even more significant.

No such findings about comprehensive improvement of immune function markers or reversal of AIDS symptoms have ever been documented in any study with ARV drugs such as AZT or nevirapine. While these ARV drugs may increase CD4 counts for a short period of time, their toxicity generally leads to a decrease of most other immune function markers.

The End of the Drug Business with the AIDS Epidemic

TAC violence in front of the Cape High Court on 13 May 2005

The breakthrough for the natural control of the AIDS epidemic inevitably means the end of the multi-billion dollar business with toxic, ineffective and patented drugs, which are being pushed into South Africa by pharmaceutical multinationals. Over the years the pharmaceutical drug cartel has used its front organizations like the DA and TAC to force the South African government to pay for the distribution of these dangerous drugs to AIDS patients in South Africa. This has only been possible for as long as the scientific knowledge about the benefits of vitamins and micronutrients in the fight against AIDS has been unknown. Now that this knowledge about the natural control of AIDS has been made public, the TAC and other front organizations of the drug cartel are desperately fighting this knowledge to protect the investment business of their funders.

The Dr. Rath Health Foundation has consistently exposed the TAC as a front organization of the drug cartel in South Africa. We have been supported in this effort by SANCO, the Traditional Healers Organization (THO) and countless dedicated individuals, especially from the most affected townships in South Africa such as Khayelitsha and Gugulethu. Faced with the total loss of their credibility, the TAC, in a desperate move, has tried to ban our Foundation from revealing the truth about their drug money funding.

TAC Causing Violence in Front of the Court

This case went before the High Court in Cape Town

on Friday 13 May. Realizing the weakness of their claims, the TAC embarked from the very beginning on a strategy to negate the facts. They organized press conferences and even invited media representatives from the leading export nations of the drug cartel to come to their support. This is the reason why media representatives from the UK (homeland of AZT manufacturer GlaxoSmithKline), the US (homeland of d4Tand ddI manufacturer Bristol-Myers Squibb) and Germany (homeland of nevirapine manufacturer Boehringer Ingelheim) came to Cape Town to report about this case. To underscore their determination to distract from the facts, the TAC even caused riots at the High Court in Cape Town in front of running cameras. This TAC violence has been captured on video tape (see pictures).

The court hearing will continue this Thursday in the Cape High Court. Again the media from the home countries from the drug cartel will be flying in.

The TAC is currently mobilizing supporters from the townships in the Western Cape to demonstrate in front of the court. The demonstrators are supposed to demonstrate against:

- the natural breakthrough in the battle against AIDS,
- our Foundation as the organization that brought about this breakthrough,
- the South African Government, which has been the global leader in implementing and promoting natural health care.

In other words, the TAC is trying to mobilize the poor victims of the AIDS epidemic to demonstrate against their own government and against the scientific breakthrough that can control the very disease they are suffering from! The TAC has a long tradition of staging these events for the scandal-hungry international media.

They want to suggest to the world that the people of South Africa are fighting against their own government. In mobilizing for its demonstration outside Court on 26 May, the TAC is using a new clandestine tactic: They do not publicly announce the demonstration but try to mobilize a crowd by going on a door to door campaign.

We ask everyone in Khayelitsha, Gugulethu and other townships:

Do you really want to march with the TAC?

The long-term strategy of the TAC is the political destabilization of the democratic government of South Africa. It has openly called for “Rage for the Revolution”, as seen in the pictures on this page. These measures include violence and civil disobedience with one purpose in mind - to destabilize our young democracy.

We therefore call upon all South Africans to resist against the TAC and support the government as a global leader in building a health-care system that is based on effective, safe and affordable natural therapies.

Do you really want to march with the TAC?

Call to the People and Governments of the World:

Stop AIDS Genocide By the Drug Cartel!

The HIV/AIDS epidemic has become one of the greatest threats to mankind ever. The African continent is hardest hit. According to the UN, 22 million Africans have already died from AIDS and every new day takes the lives of 6000 more African men, women and children.

This human tragedy has become a multi-billion dollar market for the pharmaceutical investment business - the drug cartel - in which the return on investment is based on the continuation of the AIDS epidemic. To maintain their global market with patented AIDS drugs, the pharmaceutical drug cartel promotes so-called antiretroviral (ARV drugs) to combat immune deficiencies. These ARV drugs severely damage all cells in the body - including white blood cells - thereby not improving but rather worsening immune deficiencies and expanding the AIDS epidemic.

In February 2004, the Vatican accused the 'pharmaceutical cartel' of committing genocide in Africa in the name of its multi-billion dollar profits with patented AIDS drugs.

The time has come to stop these crimes against humanity and to present to the people of Africa and the world the effective, safe and affordable solution to the AIDS epidemic. Progress in natural health now offers this opportunity.

Micronutrients Alone Can Promote the Defense Against AIDS

In Khayelitsha, a township of Cape Town, South Africa, we conducted a controlled nutritional program in HIV-positive patients with advanced AIDS who had never taken any ARV drugs. The goal of this program was to show that a combination of micronutrients can improve the built-up of the immune system even in advanced stages of Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

This nutrient combination consisted of specific vitamins, amino acids, minerals and polyphenol extracts from green tea. The list of micronutrients in this program and other details are available on the web site of our Foundation.

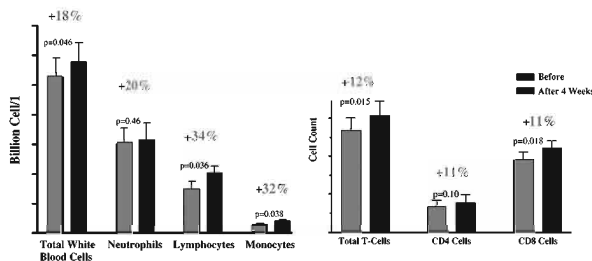

Blood tests and clinical evaluations were performed at the start and after 4 weeks on the nutrient program. Already after the first month the clinical and blood test results were profound. Patients with the most severe stages of AIDS had the highest improvements of immune function. We decided to publish the key findings without delay for the benefit of all mankind.

In July 2004 the New York Times had already reported about a study of pregnant women in Tanzania with AIDS, originally published in the July 1 issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. This 6-year study documented that multivitamins can delay the onset of AIDS by 50%.

No previously tested vitamins or ARV drugs have been able to show the reversal of clinical symptoms of Immune Deficiency Syndrome as documented here. Moreover, all known immune system markers - not only CD4 counts - significantly improved within the short period of only 4 weeks!

Improvement of Immune Function Markers in 18 AIDS Patients After 4 Weeks of Micronutrient Program

The scientific responsibility of these results is shared by Alexandra Niedzwiecki, Ph.D. (Dr. Rath Research Institute, USA), David Rasmick, Ph.D. (Dr. Rath Health Foundation, South Africa), Sam Mllongo, M.D. (Head of Family Medicine, Medical University of Southern Africa, MEDUNSA, South Africa) and Matthias Rath, M.D.

Immune Deficiency-Related Skin Ulcer Reversed

Zola (age 20) is just one example for the clinical improvements seen in this study. Last year, when she experienced symptoms of weight loss, night sweating and coughing she consulted a clinic and was diagnosed with tuberculosis (TB) and tested HIV positive.

After finishing her TB treatment, she was advised to start antiretroviral (ARV) treatment but she objected because of the side-effects of ARVs. By that time she had developed symptoms of full-blown Immune Deficiency Syndrome, including a deep neck ulcer that would not heal and eventually develop a severe infection (see picture A below). She also had pain in her legs and other parts of her body.

Soon after she started the nutrient program, the pains in her body stopped and she gained weight. The infected wound began to heal and after one month had almost completely disappeared (see picture B below).

Skin ulcers typical for advanced Immune Deficiency Syndrome

A: Before starting the nutritional program, a severely infected ulcer was visible on Zola's neck
B: After 1 month of taking micronutrients the ulcer on Zola's neck had almost completely healed

He identified the common cellular mechanisms behind the spread of cancer and viral diseases in the human body and natural ways to block them. His Research Institute of Cellular Medicine is a world leader in science-based, natural health approaches. His discoveries have been scientifically and clinically proven and published in leading scientific journals (www.dr-rath-research.org).

Dr. Rath was the first to identify the pharmaceutical 'business with disease' as the biggest obstacle for the control and eradication of today's diseases. Over the past years, his worldwide public health education campaigns, including in The New York Times and other leading newspapers, have unmasked the pharmaceutical industry as an investment business dependent on the continuation and promotion of diseases. Dr. Rath and his Research Institute have also developed economic alternatives to the pharmaceutical 'business with disease'.

South Africa Leads Global Health Liberation from the Drug Cartel

Through their involvement in the AIDS epidemic the drug cartel has turned South Africa and the African continent into a battleground to force its multi-billion dollar drug business upon the entire developing world. The people and the government of South Africa have taken on this fight by basing its health care system on effective and affordable natural health solutions. The scientific foundation for this health approach is documented in every textbook of biology and biochemistry: vitamins and other micronutrients are essential cofactors for optimum metabolism of millions of cells in our body - including the cells responsible for effective immune defense. By doing so the South African government is tearing down the artificial wall built in the interest of the drug cartel between biological science and pharma-oriented medicine. Withholding life-saving information about effective natural health and keeping the people of the world 'health illiterate' has been the basis for the multi-billion dollar global investment business with patented synthetic drugs. In this war between natural health and the 'business with disease' of the drug cartel there can be only one winner. Strengthening the immune system through natural means, which is now in sight, will inevitably terminate the unscrupulous multi-billion dollar drug business with this epidemic. In this battle for its survival the drug cartel and its political stakeholders are currently mounting their 'last offensive' on Africa.

GEORGE BUSH

The drug industry was the single largest funder of George Bush's election campaigns. As a payback and in order to promote ARV drugs across Africa, George Bush channeled 15 billion dollars of tax payer money to Africa under the name of 'Presidential Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief'.

These huge funds can not be used for any natural therapeutic approaches to fight the AIDS epidemic. These billions are nothing more than a subsidy for drug companies, promoting their toxic, unaffordable drugs to malnourished people in Africa.

THE WORLD BANK

Paul Wolfowitz, one of the fiercest executors of the drug cartel, has just been appointed head of the World Bank. He immediately announced the pouring of billions more into Africa to fight AIDS with pharmaceutical drugs. The obvious goal: cementing the monopoly of the drug cartel and keeping the economies of African countries hostage.

UN (WHO / UNAIDS)

The World Health Organisation and other UN organizations founded half a century ago to serve the people of the world have been strategically infiltrated by the drug cartel. These UN organizations are used to promote toxic, expensive AIDS drugs that cannot cure AIDS while at the same time seeking a global ban on natural health.

US INSTITUTE OF MEDICINE

The goal is to keep the entire African continent hostage by the drug cartel and economically dependent on the investment groups behind it. In order to execute this plan, the US government, through the US Institute of Medicine, is currently organizing to send thousands of doctors, pharmacists and other promoters of ARV drugs to Africa. The 200-page master plan for this unprecedented 'Drug Crusade' to 'enslave' millions of people of Africa on behalf of the drug cartel is published on the Internet at <http://www.nap.edu/books/0309096162/html>.

Africa

TONY BLAIR / GORDON BROWN

The unscrupulous global 'business with disease' of the drug cartel is orchestrated from two countries, the UK and the US, which force patented drugs on the people of 200 nations. Revenues of the UK-based drug company GlaxoSmithKline - producer of the AIDS drug AZT - is more than the combined economies of the 50 poorest countries of Africa. Tony Blair's multi-billion 'Marshall Plan for Africa', has been designed to coerce African decision makers to continue their dependency on the drug cartel and prevent the liberation of their people and economies by implementing health care based on natural therapies.

'TROJAN HORSES' OF THE DRUG CARTEL INSIDE SOUTH AFRICA

The drug cartel is also channeling millions to its 'Trojan horses' inside South Africa to exert political pressure on the government to purchase ARV drugs from drug multinationals, i.e.:

- The Democratic Alliance, a political opposition party, campaigning for 'Free ARV drugs for All!' is not even denying its funding by the drug cartel.
- The Treatment Action Campaign (TAC), the stormtroopers of the drug cartel, is funded to organize street riots calling for a 'revolution' against the South African government.

Strengthening the immune system with vitamins and other micronutrients inevitably terminates the multi-billion dollar business with patented AIDS drugs. The natural control of the Immune Deficiency Syndrome epidemic destroys not only the marketplace for the drug industry but its entire credibility. The drug cartel is being unmasked as an organization preventing natural, non-patentable health solutions in order to protect their global markets of dangerous, patented drugs and the sacrificing of lives of people in genocidal proportions. The people and the government of South Africa are leading the global struggle for the liberation of human health from the drug cartel.

In this battle, no one can stay impartial. A victory for the people of Africa is a victory for the people of the world, liberating mankind from the yoke of the pharmaceutical cartel forever. Here is how you can help:

- Further educate yourself on our web site and share this information with everyone you know!
- Urge your government to stop abusing your tax money to promote the drug cartel's business across Africa!
- Demand the redistribution of funds to fight hunger and promote natural health solutions worldwide!
- Send a message of support for the South African government to continue its leadership for health freedom!

Support South Africa in Its Struggle to Save Millions of Lives!

The Dr. Rath Health Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to the promotion of natural health through research and education worldwide. This public health information has been made possible by contributions from thousands of people worldwide who have been helped by natural health.
